School Board Elects Fifth Grade Teacher

Miss Marion Miller, of Sabine Avenue, Chosen for Post.

IS WEST CHESTER GRAD

At the July meeting of the Narberth School Board last Friday Miss Marion D. Miller, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John L. Miller, of 208 Sabine Avenue, Narberth, was elected a teacher for the fifth grade. She will take the place of Miss Hoover, who has been transferred to the sixth and seventh grades.

Miss Miller is a graduate of West Chester State Teachers' College and has been teaching successfully for the past five years at Yeadon, Delaware County, Pa. She has also attended the summer school of the University of Pennsylvania for the same period.

The borough school will open for the fall term on Monday, September 8. W. James Drennen, new supervising principal of the Narberth School, will be at the school on Friday, September 5, from 4 to 6 and on Saturday, the 6th, from 2 to 4 to register students who are entering the kindergarten or primary grade. Vaccination certificates will also be examined at this time. The school authorities expect with the registration period moved up to open for regular work the following Monday.

The school buildings are receiving their regular summer overhauling and will be in first-class shape by the opening of the fall term.

The concrete steps at the end of the school playground on Montgomery Avenue have been completed.

Tax Bills Mailed or in the Mail, Dold says

Between six and seven thousand tax bills for 1930 have been mailed or are now in the mail, Borough Tax Collector Ewin P. Dold stated this week.

While there are only 1400 properties in the borough, the reason for the large number of bills is due to the fact, Mr. Dold pointed out, that every adult in Narberth is subject to the per capita school tax and to the occupational tax. The per capita school tax was reduced for this year from $3 to $2, while the school millage rate was raised from 19 to 20 mills. The borough tax rate is now 19 mills and the county rate 4 mills.

The duplicate of the school tax, including the per capita tax, amounts to $91,154.40. The borough tax duplicate runs to $87,416.86. From these two sources all the expenses of operating the borough and the school are drawn.

A five per cent. discount will be allowed on borough taxes, Mr. Dold said, until October 1. They will then be net until January 1, when a five per cent. penalty will go into effect. An additional one per cent. penalty will be added each month thereafter that they remain unpaid. A five per cent. penalty will go on county taxes after September 1 and a similar penalty on school taxes unpaid after October 1.

The Book Reviewers to Meet Next Thursday

The Book Reviewers will meet in the Narberth Library at 10:30 A. M., Thursday, August 7. Attention will be centered on recent books of travel, with a detailed review of Harry Franck's Scandinavian Summer.

The previous meeting was given over to the consideration of children's books, as to content, illustration and general makeup. Mrs. Starr spoke on the Newbery Medal and the books that have been honored thereby.

Colored Giants Bow To Narberth Blows

Graham Allows Three Hits, and Masters One in 10-0 Victory.

DAVISMEN HIT HARD

By John Uberti

The Philadelphia Colored Giants fell prey to a sixteen-hit defeat Wednesday evening as the muscular sons of Narberth emulated their hitting mark for the fifth time this season and shelled the dusky foemen under a heavy fire to walk away in triumph, 10 to 0.

It was a wonderful preparatory contest for their hazardous task tonight with the South Phils, a foreign engagement, and the champions were out for all the batting practice they could get.

Howard Graham was chosen to start the game on the peak and fared very well in the four and one-half innings in which he served, dealing the colored clan only three licks. A switchup of the players in the fifth frame sent Graham off the hill and Masters continued the good work, offering only one more hit. The Colored Giants never had a chance against the slugging ways of the league monarchs and failed to send a man across. Their

Utility Company to Make Rate Reduction

Philadelphia Electric Announces
Sixth Cut in Eight Years.

EFFECTIVE SEPTEMBER 1

For the sixth time in eight years Philadelphia Electric Company announces a reduction in rates, the present reduction being effective September 1. The rate changes mean an annual savings to the company's customers of approximately $1,750,000. The areas suburban to Philadelphia, including the Main Line, Schuylkill and Eastern divisions, along with the city itself, will benefit by the new rates which were filed today with the Public Service Commission at Harrisburg.

The residence service rates in the suburban areas are reduced by dropping the present top price from nine cents per kilowatt-hour to eight cents per kilowatt-hour. This will effect the Main Line, Schuylkill and Eastern divisions, the eight-cent rate being already in effect in the Delaware division. The reduced rate accomplishes the twofold purpose of making rates more nearly uniform and giving a reduction in the portion of the territory where the present rates are the highest. The change is a reduction of 10.1 per cent. in the first block price.

Previous rate reductions of Philadelphia Electric and the saving to customers annually have been as follows: 1922, $1,200,000; 1923, $1,080,000; 1924, $1,300,000; 1926, $1,500,000; 1928, $900,000. These are annual and not cumulative savings. Reductions, both for gas and electric service, have been made in the Suburban area, the most recent being in 1929 to the residential, commercial and agricultural customers of $700,000 annually and a reduced gas heating rate in 1929 which is estimated to cut the cost of house heating service approximately twenty per cent. The rate reduction in 1928 amounted

Narberth Scouts Win Honors At Delmont

Capture Scoutcraft Contest, and 'Watermelon Grab' at Camp.

HAWTHORNE HONORED

Last Saturday the Narberth Boy Scouts returned from a two weeks' vacation at Camp Delmont in charge of Scoutmaster George Schroder the first week and Assistant Scoutmaster Howard Wilson the last week.

The Scouts attending camp were: Speed, Hawthorne, Schroder, Murphy, Daubert, Hemsley, M. Case, W. Case, Knapp, Humphries, Mason, Hackman, Deaves, Anderson, O'Keefe, Loughlan and McCarthy.

The troop made a fine showing, winning the Scoutcraft contest, third place in the swimming meet and winning the watermelon grab, which for real fun was worth seeing. Imagine a pool seventy-five feet across, twelve feet deep and in the centre gracefully floating a large ripe watermelon. Around the pool are gathered 300 husky melon-hungry scouts, representing twenty troops, all "cheering on" their crack swimmer. Whistle blows, "splash" go fifty swimmers and old melon starts bobbing. Object: Get the melon out of the pool (whole if possible) and the winning troop dine on watermelon while the defeated troops look on. Scout Murphy did this star trick for Narberth's troop.

But campaigning at Delmont is not all play if the objects of the camp—to teach and practice scoutcraft—are to be accomplished. It means hard work for the scout who desires to advance and the following honors were won by the Narberth Scouts: Camp Delmont Emblem: Humphries, Laughlin, Daubert and M. Case; Swimming Merit Badge, O'Keefe; First Aid Merit Badge, Murphy, Hawthorne, Schroder, O'Keefe, Daubert, M. Case, Hackman and Humphries; First Aid Emblem, Murphy, Hawthorne, Schroder, Wilson; Junior Life Saving Badge, Schroder, O'Keefe; Scout Life Guard,

Porgies, Weak Fish, Sunburn and Motor Crash Netted By Narberth Fishermen in Fortesque Foray

Scores of fish, a small shark and a motor mishap featured a week-end fishing foray to Fortesque, N. J., by several Narberth business folk.

J. J. Whiteside, Marvin Lebo and John Paul, of Narberth, and Paul Jones, of Drexel Hill, left Saturday night in the Jones' car and were followed early the next day by Gordon Wunder, Charles Ebert, Richard Moritz and Edward Tietz, of the Borough, and George Allison, of Ardmore, in the Wunder and Tietz cars.

Off Fortesque went the nine Main Liners, accompanied by two Philadelphians, in a motor boat. While two members of the party were suffering from a temporary indisposition, the rest commenced hauling in their lines.

Some also succeeded in hauling in fish. Gordon Wunder, employing the Florida free-style fishing stroke, caught 38, the largest individual haul.

The total catch included 142 porgies, 73 weakfish, 2 flounders, some skates, a two-and-a-half-foot shark, and several attractive tints of sunburn.

The party returned early Sunday evening, after a mishap on the Delaware River Bridge. Wunder's Buick, in a fast lane of traffic toward the middle of the bridge, was sideswiped by another car which had veered to avoid hitting a suddenly halted truck. The Narberth car escaped with a broken bumper.

Many families in Narberth had fish for dinner on Monday.

Narberth Theatre Notes

Those who thrilled to the daring air feats in "Wings" will enjoy "Young Eagles," in which Charles Rogers and Jean Arthur are starring at the Narberth Theatre this Friday and Saturday. Modern knight-errantry is the basis of the picture, which was filmed by William Wellman, who directed "Wings." Dick Grace, America's greatest daredevil, in this stirring war drama staged several of his most spectacular airplane "crack-ups."

Ramon Novarro will delight Narberth audiences next Monday and Tuesday with "In Gay Madrid," which contains six songs sung by the star and a large male chorus. As a romantic Spanish university student who has difficulty in deciding between the love of two attractive women and gets himself into all sorts of predicaments in the attempt, Novarro gives a fine performance similar to that of "Devil May Care" and "Pagan Love Song."

Triple attractions are scheduled for Narberth presentation next Wednesday and Thursday. In an all-talking picture that is not a lecture film, a true story of the "South Seas" is told by ex-Governor Gifford Pinchot. In "Killing the Killer," another short feature, there is enough action, suspense and thrill for a dozen full-length features; it records the sensational and actual fight of a cobra and a swift little mongoose—acclaimed by audiences everywhere as one of the most remarkable features ever filmed. The third feature is a new Edward Everett Horton comedy, "Wide Open," in which the hero is aided and abetted by Louise Fazenda, Patsy Ruth Miller and T. Roy Barnes.

Coming next week-end is "Free and Easy"—Buster Keaton's hilarious talking comedy.

Preaches At All Saints

The Rev. E. J. Bubb, assistant to the Rev. Gibson Bell at All Saints Church, Wynnewood, will conduct services the rest of the summer in the absence of the rector. Mr. and Mrs. Bubb returned last week from a motor trip during which they visited Mrs. Bubb's home at Lancaster, O., three weeks and Mr. Bubb's home in Pittsburgh for three weeks.

Egyptian Theatre News

Buster Keaton, in a hilariously diverting talking comedy, "Free and Easy," is concluding a two-day performance at the Egyptian Theatre, Cynwyd, this Friday night. In the singing and talking and clowning cast are Anita Page, Karl Dane, Dorothy Sebastian, Robert Montgomery and many other headliners.

This Saturday's feature at the Egyptian is a story which combines baseball romance and vaudeville life. Baseball games in which teams of big league diamond stars take part play an important part in "They Learned About Women." Three complete games are played before the cameras and microphones, bringing to the screen graphic play-by-play sequences that combine tense action with human interest. In the cast are Bessie Love, Joe Schenck and Gus Van.

"The Big Pond," with Maurice Chevalier and Claudette Colbert, is an outstanding attraction which will appear at the Egyptian next Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday. Miss Colbert starred with Walter Huston in "The Lady Lies." Mr. Chevalier is ranked with the Statue of Liberty as being "France's greatest gift to America." (His name, by the way, is pronounced "Shev-al-yay"—with a slight accent on the "al.") In "The Big Pond," the spirited Maurice plays the part of a young Frenchman who is pitch-forked into an American chewing gum factory, to learn the business. He succeeds, aided by a facility for making songs out of the company's advertisements. The "talkie" is based on a Broadway play of last season. One of its song hits is "You Brought a New Kind of Love to Me."

The Egyptian's features next Thursday and Friday are "The Texan" and a Lloyd Hamilton talking comedy—"Grass Skirts." In "The Texan" Gary Cooper as "The Llano Kid" has a characterization as popular and convincing as that of "The Virginian." There is humor, romance and considerable excitement in this story based on O. Henry's story, "A Double-Dyed Deceiver," whose action takes place in the Texas and South America of the year 1885.

Coming Saturday of next week is a Richard Dix comedy, "Lovin' the Ladies." Scheduled for prompt presentation are "Caught Short," William Powell in "Shadow of the Law" and Ruth Chatterton in "Lady of Scandal."

'Ye Shall Know the Truth and the Truth Shall Drive Ye Mad'; a Texas Editor Yields to Temptation

An editor down in Texas had been accused on several occasions of not telling the truth in his newspaper.

In newspaper parlance, his ire was roused, and he announced:

"A lot of people in this town fall out with the editor and brand him a liar when the ordinary mistakes of life show up in the paper. You have a little charity and fellow feeling for every man in town but the editor. You claim you want the facts and d—d if we don't give them to you. Read the next issue of this sheet and you will see facts with the bark off.

"I admit that I have been a liar, an editorial liar ever since I have been editing this sheet, but I have never printed a lie in these columns except to keep somebody's feelings from being hurt. I am not afraid of any of you and I'll be dad-blamed if I don't print the truth from now on or until you get out of the habit of calling me a liar every time I make some unavoidable typographical error. Now watch my smoke."

And here are some paragraphs of his "smoke" in the next issue:

"John Bennin, the laziest man in town, made a trip to Bellevue yesterday."

"Rev. Sty preached last Sunday at the local church. His sermon was punk and uninteresting except some stuff he quoted from Bob Ingersoll, for which he failed to give Bob any credit. He also cited a few passages from William Gilbert Munsey's sermons and had the unlimited gall to palm it off as his own."

"Tom Spardin married Miss Caroline Meadows last trades day at the county seat. It wasn't generally known, but the marriage was brought about mainly by a Remington shotgun manipulated by the bride's father. Tom concluded that marrying was the healthiest thing he could do until other arrangements had been made."

"Regan Lloyd, cashier of the State Bank of Willow Grove, died last Wednesday and was buried by the Odd Fellows at Pleasant Mound Cemetery. He had been taking this paper for several years and had not paid us a cent. We thought that being a banker he would certainly pay some time. We will sell the account for two bits' worth of groceries."

"Married—Miss Susie Seruggs and Horace Griffin. The bride is a very ordinary girl who flirts with every traveling man she meets and never helped her mother three days in her life all put together. She is anything but a beauty, resembling a gravel pit in the face and walks like a duck. The groom is a natural-born loafer and bum. He never did a lick of work until his step-daddy ran him off from home last fall. He went to the county seat and rather than starve to death he accepted a job as chambermaid in a livery stable. As soon as his ma found out where he was she went up and got him and brought him home. They now reside at the home of his wife's father and he has no definite plans for the future. Susie will have a hard row to hoe."

New Bus Line to Feed Main Line Section

Overbrook and the Market Street Elevated Terminal, Upper Darby, have been linked together with a modern bus line, which began operation Monday. The new important addition to Delaware Counties transportation network, directly connects with thirty other bus and rail lines, and is operated by the Arononink Transportation Co.

Fifteen-minute frequency will be maintained during most hours of the day. Fare will be ten cents.

Following a route from the Market Street Elevated Terminal in Upper Darby, the busses transverse West Chester Boulevard, State Road, Lancaster Avenue, Haverford Avenue and City Line to the Overbrook terminus on the north side of the P. R. R. Station. A loop at Overbrook carries the line via Sixty-third Street, Woodbine Avenue, Upland Way, Drexel Road and City Avenue and return to the south side of station.

The attractive new busses operating on the route were designed especially for the service.

The new line acts as a direct connecting link between seven other motorbusses and rail lines that converge at Overbrook, serving Penn Wynne, Ardmore and the Main Line District. It likewise connects with the Narberth motorbus line for Bala, Cynwyd and other main line points, and affords accurate connection for commuters with P. R. R. east and westbound trains at Overbrook Station.

At the Market Street Elevated Terminal the new route also contacts twenty other main bus and rail lines that converge at that point, in addition to two transit lines which will meet at Haverford Avenue and Lansdowne Avenue and one at Haverford Avenue and City Avenue, Overbrook Hills.

Other new transportation lines will be opened from the Market Street Elevated Terminal in the near future, it is said.

FORE AND AFT

The program of the Hedgerow Theatre of Rose Valley for the week of August 4 will be opened on Tuesday, the 5th, with the second performance of J. M. Synge's "The Playboy of the Western World." This play, which is to be given its first performance tomorrow night, will be repeated with the cast, which includes Ferd Nofer, Dudley Vaughan, William Price, Harry Bellaver and Cele McLaughlin in the leading roles.

The week is likewise to mark the awaited return to the repertory of Jean Jacques Bernard's exquisite and poetic drama, "Martine," a sensitive study of a peasant girl and her love for a young artist, fulfilled but for a brief moment. It is a play full of subtly-handled characterization, a pathetically moving revelation of frustrated expression and a poetic understanding which is strongly akin to that to be found in the poems of the French revolutionary poet, Andre Chenier, a poet whom the author of the play seems to have held in distinct admiration. The drama will be given next Friday evening with Frances Torchiana again in the role of the finely-tempered Martine and Walter Hart as the disillusioning young lover.

The program for the remainder of the week will be rounded by Shaw's shrewd and captivating comedy, "Captain Brassbound's Conversion," on Wednesday, with Gretchen Anton-Smith as its very diverting and misguiding heroine, and Edwin Anderson and William Price likewise in leading roles, and Ibsen's last drama, magnificent in its rhythm of human understanding, "When We Dead Awake," on Thursday evening, with Alfred Rowe as Professor Rubeck, Miriam Phillips as Maia Rubeck, and Gretchen Anton-Smith as the exalted Irene. "The Mask and the Face" will again be played Saturday evening, August 9.

Tonight's play at Hedgerow is also "The Mask and the Face."

The Hydra Rears Its Head

Talk of annexation of the outlying suburban communities by the city of Philadelphia, recently revived again, makes it a matter of concern to all residents of Lower Merion, Narberth and nearby townships. The proposal is not a new one, but is being advocated strongly by certain factions, notably real estate operators and developers.

The proposal has gained strength from the poor census returns in the city. It is felt that Philadelphia is in danger of losing its place as the third city of the country unless a greater metropolitan area can be established which will include the suburbs in Montgomery and Delaware Counties which have increased heavily in population during the past decade.

The township of Lower Merion and the borough of Narberth would gain nothing by incorporation within the municipal boundaries of Philadelphia. Furthermore they would immediately be subject to all the evils which are prevalent in the city—excessive taxation, high assessments, a great increase in bonded indebtedness—to name only a few.

Naturally Philadelphia wishes to annex the wealthy townships comprising its suburbs. It would mean a great new reservoir for the city to draw from. Philadelphia's borrowing capacity is nearly used up, while Lower Merion's unused borrowing capacity amounts to over one million five hundred thousand dollars. Assessments in the city are high, running to a large percentage of the true value, which of course means that taxes are that much greater. In Lower Merion assessments are fixed at a fair percentage of the true value. As Township Treasurer Peter C. Hess stated, "the fundamental idea of local government is to raise sufficient money to run the government and no more." Compare this idea with that prevalent in a nearby municipality where the taxpayers are squeezed for all that can be gotten out of them.

Residents of the Main Line take their advantages for granted, but it might be well to review briefly the benefits that residents of the section receive under its present governmental forms.

The school system is one of the best in the State; the Lower Merion Police Department is as efficient and gives as much protection as that provided in the city, and its members are decidedly more courteous. The fire companies, while volunteer organizations, are efficient and constantly growing more capable with added centralization.

The governing bodies of Lower Merion and Narberth are composed of business executives and professional men of high standing, who devote themselves to the duties of local government from the desire to be of service to the community in which they make their home. The same cannot always be said of big city governing bodies.

An obvious disadvantage which would result from annexation would be a loss of prestige to Lower Merion and Narberth. They would become part of a great governmental organization, which because of its very size and remoteness, could not react as quickly or as easily to district appeals and needs as the present Township Commission or Borough Council. Lower Merion's twenty-five square miles and Narberth's one would be engulfed in Philadelphia's great maw.

The annexationists will have a hard row to hoe. The difficulties in their path are enormous and the chief of them being that the suburban areas involved would have the right of deciding by a majority vote whether or not they wished to be annexed and Lower Merion and Narberth do not wish to be adopted.

A Public Benefactor

A fine example of public conscience in business is afforded by the Philadelphia Electric Company which announced this week another reduction in electric rates.

This reduction, the sixth in eight years, will be effective September 1, and applies to the whole Main Line territory as well as other sections.

Coming in the middle of the summer when business as a rule is at a low ebb, and on the heels of a nationwide depression, it is all the more significant.

Large corporations have come in for their share of censure of late years, but when they are operated in such a manner that savings and economies are passed along to the consumer there can be only praise for their business methods.

JESS—IN FUN

Zaro Agha, in the event that you have not been reading the daily papers, is the grand Turk who has come to America to prove that careful living leads to longevity. Mr. Agha's claim is that he was born in 1774, making him one hundred and fifty-six years old. He looks it. He doesn't smoke or drink. His hobby during the last century or so has been collecting wives. He is on the lookout for one now; I think it will be his eighth. Beyond his eccentricities concerning liquor, tobacco and wives, he is pretty normal. That is to say, he has the modern desire for publicity. Nothing gives him more pleasure than to see his picture in the papers. He plans to demonstrate to the American public the utter futility of their present habits. He will exhibit his excellent physique from place to place. He will utter unintelligible Turkish syllables, and his audience will mistake them for words of wisdom. He will write a book (he probably can't even read, but the book will be published over his name), and it will sell. And if he proves to be an attraction to the American public his father or his grandfather will put in an early appearance at New York.

Mr. Agha may have his years, few or many as they may be, for all that I care. I should hate to pop off this mortal coil leaving as my sole claim to fame the number of years that I existed. Has Mr. Agha ever DONE anything? His press agents do not say so. Has he really lived? I doubt it. Has he ever in summer watched the sun rise over Tuscarora's summit? Has he ever owned a dog? One can tell much more about a man's character from the number of dogs that he has owned than from the number of unsuspecting females he has led to the altar. Does he go to Sunday evening service? Does he pay his grocery bills promptly? But I am asking too many American questions. The real question, I presume, that should be asked to determine a Turk's standing in his home community is how many Armenians has he massacred? If Mr. Agha has a fine record in this line, say about three thousand and twenty, his publicity men will have no trouble in selling him to this country.

Now that the Naval Treaty is out of the way finally the Senators are going to take a vacation. I can't help wondering just how many Americans would rise in protest if the Senate decided to take a real vacation, say about three years. So far as we Pennsylvanians are concerned, there would be no weeping and wailing. And it would give Herbert Hoover a chance to produce in this country all the fine things which Calvin Coolidge is writing. Mr. Coolidge is quite a writer. He says: "The more that one spends, the less he will save." And you, gentle reader, sop it all up and cry for more. The same remark from your six-year-old would receive an irate, "What of it?" For years and years the great mystery was Calvin Coolidge's impenetrable silence. Everyone wondered. Stories were told, fictional and otherwise. The prize one concerned his return from church one day. Mrs. Coolidge wanted to know about the service. Cal said nothing. So she inquired about the subject of the sermon. Cal replied, "Sin." "Well," said Mrs. Coolidge, "what did the preacher say about sin?" And Cal replied out of the corner of his mouth: "He was agin it." For years, I said, Cal's silence was the great mystery. Now at last it is explained. He had nothing to say. He still has nothing much to say, but the prospects of extraordinary pay checks seem to have loosened his pen a bit. I, for one, am moron enough to read his writings every day. I still expect that some fine day he will for a moment forget his resolve to reutter the oldest and most inane platitudes. Some day he may come out of his shell and report the interesting things which are at present treasured up in his long Yankee head. He probably knows more and has said less about the politics of this late decade than any man now living. As the sole extant specimen of the genus, Ex-President, he

Boro Infield Falters, Paoli Wins in Ninth

Babb, Substituting for Rubincam, Slips on Double Play, Admitting Two Runs.

By John Uberti.

The withdrawal of a player whose bat and services afield were largely responsible for the fine work of the Narberth Club up until the final inning in favor of a man who had not yet recuperated from a recent injury sustained in a ball game was the direct cause of Narberth's 6-4 loss to the Paoli Club last Saturday in the second league game of the second-half season.

Manager Davis' insertion of George Babb for Joel Rubincam, who had been the outstanding factor in Narberth's great uphill fight prior to the activities of the ninth inning, came as a surprise to the entire audience and also to the members of the Paoli team.

In his three trips to the plate Joel Rubincam had clubbed two productive doubles, one resulting in the coining of a run, while in his third appearance he was less unfortunate and surrendered on strikes.

In a fluctuating tussle that existed since the beginning of the fray, Narberth managed to end up on top in the home half of each inning subsequent to Paoli's deeds performed in the alien halves. Walter Masters was going along in good style, but lost out in the final frame when the foe men scored thrice to capture the game. Tompkins secured a pass to first in the finale and when Umbach dribbled an easy one past second base a twin-killing was in sight, but Babb failed. Belancin then doubled and two men who should have been expunged on the lanes dashed homeward with the vital runs of victory. Davis raised a fly to centerfield and Eachus hit to Humphries. After booting the pellet around the hot-box awhile the veteran effected an inaccurate assist to McEntee, but the relay went high of Joe's reach and Belancin skipped to third. McEntee recovered the ball and threw to Babb, who made a rapid relay of the assist to Burns behind the plate, but the heave fell short of the pentagon and Belancin scored without trouble. It was not so much the latter blunder that gave the visiting nine the triumph as the former misjudgment afield which let in the two runs. In his one appearance at the plate Babb forced a pal off second base.

Joel Rubincam was the leading player of the day with two doubles out of three trips to the disc for a batting mark of .667. Vernie Fleck contributed three singles in this game, one of which was prolific for the cause of Narberth. By hitting in this contest, Vernie elevated his hitting streak to twenty-one games for the year and expects to leave a difficult record to equal by his teammates for consecutive hitting.

Coatesville's Refusal to Play Extra Inning Forfeits Game to Narberth, 9-0

By John Uberti.

By refusing to play out the scheduled nine innings in their return engagement at Narberth last Thursday, Herb Stein's Coatesville Club were declared losers as they led the borough clan two runs to one. Umpire Hopkins' decision which gave the champions victory came at the end of the seventh inning when Manager Stein stubbornly voiced his refusal to continue, on account of the growing darkness. Mr. Hopkins was decidedly justified in announcing that an extra inning be played.

News of Narberth's great doings in the last inning of a ball game, after permitting the adversary to lead up until the final frame, has undoubtedly reached the ears of the Coatesville population. That fact was clearly portrayed in this game when the fourteen cast a mute ear to the repeated challenges and accusations from the fans of Narberth. Manager Stein was taking no chances of an extra inning and refused to obey the umpire's orders to play an extra session.

This win gave the boroughites their second victory over the Coatesville team, having defeated them 13-5 the day before on their own diamond at Central Park. The triumph also extends the champions' streak to three in a row since setting their recent record of fourteen straight.

According to a clause as set forth in the baseball book of rules, a team losing a game by a forfeiture is deprived of all its runs scored in that game and the opposing team is officially credited with scoring a run an inning for the full course of the contest. This gives Narberth a 9-0 victory over Coatesville, instead of a 2-1 setback. The Westerners were leading the Davismen two runs to one in the scoring column and were outlasting them four hits to two. Narberth scored their only tally of the fray in the third session when Reynolds tripled to rightfield and scored on a short sacrifice fly. However, Bill was fortunate in bringing in the tally, having made his way over the disc only when the catcher dropped the ball after tagging him out at the plate.

Appropriation to Ardmore Fire Company Still in Air

Failure of the Merion Fire Company of Ardmore to appoint a new chief to represent the company on the Board of Directors of the Lower Merion Fire Department by Monday, July 14, the time appointed by the Board of Commissioners, in their ultimatum, will result in the further deferment of the township appropriation to the Ardmore Volunteer Company.

While the Board of Managers of the company are desirous of meeting the terms of the Board of Commissioners, they have not yet prevailed upon Edward McGoldrick, chief engineer of the company, to resign or reconsider his resignation from the Township Fire Department.

No further move has been made by the township authorities, their view being that it is up to the Fire Company to straighten out the situation from their end if they wish to get the appropriation of $5000 due them.

William H. McCreary, of Glenn Road, Ardmore, the president of the Merion Fire Company, it is reported, will be away until September.

George B. Matthews, chairman of the Board of Managers, yesterday made the following statement:

"The Board of Managers of the Merion Fire Co. will aim to bring about a settlement and also to receive the Township Commissioners' appropriation to the Merion Fire Co."

"Both parties have agreed to a detailed investigation, so that final results may not be arrived at until September or October of this year."

"In the meantime Merion Fire Co. will continue to carry on."

GEO. B. MATTHEWS,
Chairman, Board of Managers.

Advanced notes on the Bryn Mawr Horse Show.

Steeplechasers will be featured in new classes in the Bryn Mawr Horse Show this fall. Other new classes were added and a larger prize list provided for by the executive committee of the horse show association at a meeting held this week.

The dates of the thirty-fourth annual show were set for September 24, 25, 26 and 27 next, in the horse show oval on the polo grounds at Bryn Mawr.

Prize cattle and fall flowers will be exhibits additional to blue ribbon horses. The Chester County Cattle Association and other livestock breeders' organizations will participate in a display to be held on an adjoining part of the grounds and will show Guernsey's, Jerseys, Herefords and other breeds dairy stock owned by gentlemen farmers of the surrounding area. The Pennsylvania Horticultural Society, in co-operation with the women's garden clubs, will stage its annual exhibition of dahlias, other fall flowers, fruits and vegetables.

Quite a few exhibitors will have entries in all three displays—horses, cattle and flowers.

Narberth Scouts Win Honors At Delmont

The highest camping honors that can be conferred upon a scout is to be elected to the W. W. Scout Tom Hawthorne was honored this year by the Narberth Troop and he stood the required "acid test," as did Scoutmaster Schroder, who was appointed by the "Chief of the Lodge" and says that this test is one of the hardest he has taken in any lodge or society, so when a boy makes the grade we must agree that he is SOME SCOUT.

Reynolds' Triple Clinches Victory

Three-bagger in Second, Clears Bases, While He Adds Another in Seventh.

ALLOWED ONLY SIX HITS

By John Uberti

William (Three-Base) Reynolds, Narberth's slugging pitcher, combined masterly hurling with opportune hitting in Monday's twilight festival to score his fourth straight pitching win for the Borough champions in dealing the Columbia Turners six parted hits for a 5-1 victory.

Bill became independent of himself in this game and was taking no chances of a possible faux pas from his comrades to mar his fine pitching record. With the bases filled to capacity in the second inning, and two men down, Reynolds ambled confidently to the pentagon and enjoyed himself for a while clouting a few foul blows along the railroad bank. Then, having satisfied himself in making mock of Bonnett's pitching arm, Bill paid homage to a once great pitcher among the Philadelphia diamonds by banging a curving three-base shot which landed barely inside of the right wing and disappeared behind the scoreboard. By the time Dietrich recovered the dented pellet three men had trekked homeward and Bill rested at third, where he remained at the end of the inning.

Of the four hits Reynolds has earned during the second-half of the season, three have been triples. In the seventh inning of this game, Billy lifted another Bonnett heave into right field for three bases, with no one aboard. However, a sacrificial blow brought the hitting pitcher home, thus crediting him with having scored four of the five runs coined by the Narberth club. The other run was contributed by Martin in the sixth when he made first on Stark's error and scored off Rubincam's single.

Joel Rubincam, star of Saturday's league game, continued the fine work with the hickory when he again led the local sticksmiths by discharging three singles in four times at bat. Reynolds batted .667 in pursuit of Joel's feat.

The Columbia Turners put men on base at an average rate of one an inning but Reynolds stemmed every threat of an upstart by curbing the Philadelphians without any damage having been caused. In the final frame of the game, however, the enemy went to work on Bill and gathered a pair of nicks for a solitary point.

Harvey Humphries was first up in Narberth's productive second inning scoring but popped to Clement in left. Gilfillan clicked a single into left wing as did Rubincam. Thomas strolled and the lanes were well occupied. Young was disappointing and raised a feeble fly to first base. Bill Reynolds, the three-base-hit man, then came to bat and garnered his much-awaited-for hit which sent in all three pals.

Bill was again responsible for additional scoring in the seventh. A stinging crash of Bonnett's offering went to rest among the trees in right field giving Reynolds another triple for the game. Townsend went in for Heckle but struck out, but on Kearney's sacrifice fly Reynolds brought home the fourth run of the contest. Martin hit to Hanlon and was retired.

Historic and Beautiful Thousand Islands IsDestination For Motor Tour Mapped by Auto Club*A PLEASANT
MOTOR TRIPPrepared by the
KEYSTONE AUTOMOBILE CLUB

With its rocky broken coastline of many inlets, wooded capes, frequent beaches and quaint old villages, Cape Cod presents a picture of charm that delights motorists seeking a pleasant vacation.

Through attractive regions along the Connecticut shore, the Keystone Automobile Club has outlined a motor tour that will supply motorists with a delightful journey to this famous "Down East" section.

"While the New England sea coast is always alluring, June and July finds the climate and conditions especially attractive on Cape Cod," says Joseph Murphy, manager of the Ardmore branch of the club. "With their windswept open spaces, pleasant beaches and numerous attractive resorts, Cape Cod, Marthas Vineyard and Nantucket present a picture that will always be remembered by travelers."

From Ardmore the tour leads through Norristown where national route 122 is met and followed through Montgomeryville, Doylestown and Buckingham to New Hope. Here the Delaware River is crossed to Lambertville and the journey continues through Ringoes and Flemington to a point north of White House where a right turn leads into national route 22. This highway carries the travelers through Somerville, Plainfield and Westfield into Elizabeth.

From Elizabeth, Ridge Road is followed through East Rutherford, to Hackensack where a right turn leads to Englewood Cliffs and the ferry to Dyckman Street, New York. Crossing Manhattan over the Fordham Road the travelers connect with the famous Boston Post Road, marked as national route 1 which is used along the Connecticut shore through Port Chester to New Haven. From here the shore line is followed to Westerly where the State line is crossed into Rhode Island. At Wakefield the highway winds north along the shore of picturesque Narraganset Bay to Providence. From here national route 6 is used through Fall River to New Bedford, once the leading whaling port of New England. On Johnny Cake Hill stands a unique monument to the town's ancient industry, facing toward Marthas Vineyard and Nantucket.

Here the motor journey can be halted long enough to take an attractive steamer trip to these two islands. Eighteen years before the Pilgrims landed at Plymouth Rock a shipload of Englishmen settled a colony on Marthas Vineyard. Vineyard Haven is the principal port although good roads lead through Oak Bluffs, Edgartown and other attractive regions. Excellent beaches, quaint villages and scores of summer resorts make this a vacation paradise. From New Bedford the motor journey continues to Wareham where the Cape Cod Ship Canal is crossed to Bourne. From this point national route 6 winds along the north shore of the cape country through Sagamore, Sandwich, West Barnstable and Dennis to Orleans. Here a left turn leads through Wellfleet to Provincetown on the northern tip of the cape where, amid a setting of natural charm and historic background, is located the largest summer artist colony in the world.

Retracing the route through Orleans to Chatham the travelers pass along the south shore of the cape fronting the broad Atlantic through Harwich Port, South Yarmouth, Hyannis and Santuit to Falmouth. From this point the tour leads along the shore of Buzzards Bay back to Bourne from where the homeward journey can be started over the same route as the outbound trip was made.

Two well-paved main trunk highways that were once narrow muddy Indian trails carry thousands of travelers annually through the attractive scenic regions on either bank of the beautiful blue St. Lawrence River and into that vacation paradise known as the Thousand Islands. To this delightful region the Keystone Automobile Club has mapped a most interesting motor journey for vacationists.

"Historically this section teems with interest while scenically it has been lavishly endowed and remains unspoiled in its natural charm," says Joseph Murphy, manager of the Ardmore branch of the club. "The name, 'Thousand Islands,' is no misnomer. By actual count there are 1692 islands in the St. Lawrence between Lake Ontario and the 'Narrows,' fifty miles below. Scattered in picturesque profusion, irregular in shape and size, they divide the crystal waters into a maze of channels."

From Ardmore the tour leads through Norristown and Center Square to Montgomeryville where national route 309 is met and followed northward through Allentown, Lehigh, Hazleton and Wilkes-Barre to Scranton. Here national route 11 is used through highly scenic regions of northern Pennsylvania to Binghamton, N. Y. Northward this highway carries the travelers through Courtland and skirting the edge of the famous Finger Lake region passes through Syracuse to Watertown. From here State route 12 leads to Clayton on the banks of the St. Lawrence River.

This delightful resort in the heart of the Thousand Islands is known as the "Venice of America," for twelve miles above and forty miles below Clayton stretch the Thousand Islands, presenting scenes of great beauty and lasting charm. Northward along the banks of the St. Lawrence State route 3 leads to Alexandria Bay. Within a radius of ten miles of this delightful resort are located two-thirds of all the Thousand Islands. Swift little motor boats, so numerous and indispensable here, transport the tourists through winding waterways and into scenic fairylands. Alexandria Bay is a mecca for lovers of water sports. Here are held important regattas and during the boat races the St. Lawrence region dons her most colorful array.

Through Redwood and Hammond State route 3 leads to Morristown. From here a delightful side trip can be made to the Black Lake section. From Morristown the highway winds along the river bank to Ogdensburg, near the rapids in the St. Lawrence River. Northward State route 3 leads through picturesque natural scenic regions to Massena on the American side. From Ogdensburg the tourists can cross the river to Prescott on the town is Fort Wellington, built during the War of 1812 and still in a remarkable state of preservation. Its museum is well worth a visit.

Northward from Prescott the Dominion Highway route 2 leads to Montreal. Southward the same highway carries the travelers homeward along the Canadian side of the St. Lawrence. Ten miles southward lies Brockville, from which the famous Three Sisters Islands can be visited. This town is also the pivot point for a side trip to the beautiful Rideau Lakes. Charleston Lake, twenty miles from Brockville, is also a delightful scenic motor run.

Are Volunteer Fire Companies Efficient? The Firemen's Case

The controversy between certain members of the volunteer fire companies of Lower Merion Township and the township's Board of Commissioners leads the average citizen and property owner to ask two questions:

Is the present volunteer fire-fighting system efficient?

Should it be improved, replaced by a paid department, or let alone?

The controversy—still smouldering—concerned the commissioners' decision to appoint a paid fire marshal to unite the fire-fighting and fire-prevention forces of the township under one head.

The commissioners thought it was a step toward efficient management of an important part of the township's business. But they reckoned without the traditional spirit of the volunteer fireman, to whom the threat of a paid boss is as insulting as a present of British salt would be to Ghandi.

There is something to be said for the volunteer's attitude. Anyone who has seen him at work knows how cheerfully he braves danger, ruins clothes, takes time from sleep or work to save other people's property, and jumps to attention the moment the whistle blows. He gets nothing for all this but the privilege of using the fire-house as a club. To the outsider it would seem that the game is not worth the candle, but volunteer firemen are probably born, not made.

It is not surprising then, that he should resent the appointment of one he can see only as an usurper of the rights and privileges of his own local, unpaid chief. The prospect of a paid boss arouses his animosity, but the fact that rather definite rumor has it that the boss will come from the Philadelphia Fire Department and not from one of his own companies creates in him a spirit of virulent anger.

All this should interest the property owner who knows that fire insurance rates are based on the efficiency of his fire department as well as upon the construction of his house or business property. But he is not interested in the woes of firemen. He asks for efficiency and is entitled to it.

In common with city dwellers, who take all that a municipality has to offer them as their due and make no comment except to kick, many residents of Lower Merion regard the volunteer fire system as an archaic survival of days when every fire meant a picnic and free-for-all fist fight while somebody's house blazed merrily.

It will surprise them to learn that the very men on the Board of Commissioners who have the most cause to feel anger at the recent attitude of the firemen have only praise for their opponents' efficiency as fire-fighters.

Here, then, are a few facts about the personnel and equipment of the township's fire-fighting system:

There are five volunteer fire "companies," so-called, in the township: Merion, of Ardmore; Bryn Mawr; Union, of Bala-Cynwyd; West Manayunk; Penn-Wynne. These make up the Fire Department of Lower Merion and the Board of Directors of that department consists of the five fire chiefs, the superintendent of police and the chairman of the commissioners' committee on police and fire.

The equipment and personnel of these five companies is such as to make seven complete engine companies and three truck, or hook-and-ladder companies. That is the way they would be made up in Philadelphia or any other large city. Their equipment is equal to that in use in any large city and superior to that of many cities. For example, Bryn Mawr's equipment is the equal of that used in New York.

These companies are supplemented by the engine company maintained by the Autocar Company, of Ardmore, and the fire-fighting force of the Borough of Narberth which co-operates with the township Fire Department. The Narberth Company is made up of two complete engine companies, with supplementary equipment. At least two paid men are maintained by each company; the Bryn Mawr Company having three on duty at all times and the Narberth Company having one paid man on full-time duty and three men on part-time duty. These three men sleep in the fire house and are on hand for speedy response to night alarms.

The equipment of the five companies is as follows:

Union Fire Association of Bala-Cynwyd: 750-gallon Seagrave pumper, Seagrave city service truck (hook and ladder), combination (or chemical) wagon.

Merion Fire Company, of Ardmore: 750-gallon American LaFrance pumper, 75-foot quick-raising aerial ladder truck, 500-gallon Watrous pumper, combination hose and chemical wagon.

FURTHER EXPANSION for STRAWBRIDGE & CLOTHIER'S Main Line Store

OUR NEW STORE which was opened on May 12 at St. James Place and Montgomery Avenue, Ardmore, has met with such hearty endorsement from the Main Line that we are already starting to expand it so that even better facilities may be offered for the autumn and Christmas season.

The area of the Lower Main Floor will be more than doubled by increasing the space under the street level of St. James Place. The work will be pushed very rapidly and we hope to have it finished in a few weeks. This expansion will give us a much better opportunity to serve the many thousands who have accepted this store as their local shopping center.

SUMMER HOURS

The Main Line Store will be open every day, including Saturday, during the summer months, from 9 to 5 o'clock.

Are Volunteer Fire Companies Efficient? The Firemen's Case

The controversy between certain members of the volunteer fire companies of Lower Merion Township and the township's Board of Commissioners leads the average citizen and property owner to ask two questions:

Is the present volunteer fire-fighting system efficient?

Should it be improved, replaced by a paid department, or let alone?

The controversy—still smouldering—concerned the commissioners' decision to appoint a paid fire marshal to unite the fire-fighting and fire-prevention forces of the township under one head.

The commissioners thought it was a step toward efficient management of an important part of the township's business. But they reckoned without the traditional spirit of the volunteer fireman, to whom the threat of a paid boss is as insulting as a present of British salt would be to Ghandi.

There is something to be said for the volunteer's attitude. Anyone who has seen him at work knows how cheerfully he braves danger, ruins clothes, takes time from sleep or work to save other people's property, and jumps to attention the moment the whistle blows. He gets nothing for all this but the privilege of using the fire-house as a club. To the outsider it would seem that the game is not worth the candle, but volunteer firemen are probably born, not made.

It is not surprising then, that he should resent the appointment of one he can see only as an usurper of the rights and privileges of his own local, unpaid chief. The prospect of a paid boss arouses his animosity, but the fact that rather definite rumor has it that the boss will come from the Philadelphia Fire Department and not from one of his own companies creates in him a spirit of virulent anger.

All this should interest the property owner who knows that fire insurance rates are based on the efficiency of his fire department as well as upon the construction of his house or business property. But he is not interested in the woes of firemen. He asks for efficiency and is entitled to it.

In common with city dwellers, who take all that a municipality has to offer them as their due and make no comment except to kick, many residents of Lower Merion regard the volunteer fire system as an archaic survival of days when every fire meant a picnic and free-for-all fist fight while somebody's house blazed merrily.

It will surprise them to learn that the very men on the Board of Commissioners who have the most cause to feel anger at the recent attitude of the firemen have only praise for their opponents' efficiency as fire-fighters.

Here, then, are a few facts about the personnel and equipment of the township's fire-fighting system:

There are five volunteer fire "companies," so-called, in the township: Merion, of Ardmore; Bryn Mawr; Union, of Bala-Cynwyd; West Manayunk; Penn-Wynne. These make up the Fire Department of Lower Merion and the Board of Directors of that department consists of the five fire chiefs, the superintendent of police and the chairman of the commissioners' committee on police and fire.

The equipment and personnel of these five companies is such as to make seven complete engine companies and three truck, or hook-and-ladder companies. That is the way they would be made up in Philadelphia or any other large city. Their equipment is equal to that in use in any large city and superior to that of many cities. For example, Bryn Mawr's equipment is the equal of that used in New York.

These companies are supplemented by the engine company maintained by the Autocar Company, of Ardmore, and the fire-fighting force of the Borough of Narberth which co-operates with the township Fire Department. The Narberth Company is made up of two complete engine companies, with supplementary equipment. At least two paid men are maintained by each company; the Bryn Mawr Company having three on duty at all times and the Narberth Company having one paid man on full-time duty and three men on part-time duty. These three men sleep in the fire house and are on hand for speedy response to night alarms.

The equipment of the five companies is as follows:

Union Fire Association of Bala-Cynwyd: 750-gallon Seagrave pumper, Seagrave city service truck (hook and ladder), combination (or chemical) wagon.

Merion Fire Company, of Ardmore: 750-gallon American LaFrance pumper, 75-foot quick-raising aerial ladder truck, 500-gallon Watrous pumper, combination hose and chemical wagon.

Bryn Mawr Fire Company: 1000-gallon Ahrens Fox pumper, 750-gallon Ahrens Fox pumper, Seagrave city service truck.

West Manayunk Fire Company: 500-gallon American LaFrance pumper, American LaFrance combination hose and chemical.

Penn Wynne: 600-gallon American LaFrance triple combination (booster tank, hose and pumper).

Narberth Fire Company: American LaFrance 750-gallon pumper, American LaFrance city service truck with heavy duty turret pipe, Autocar combination, chief's car equipped with two portable extinguishers, door opener, pinch bar.

The active personnel of each company is between twenty-five and fifty men who are trained to the job by instructors from the Philadelphia Fire School. Foresee Large Pennsylvania Representation On Villanova College Football Team This Fall

Football timber from Pennsylvania will be most conspicuous on this season's Villanova College grid machine, as little less than half of the moleskin warriors or 40 per cent. of the men who will report to Coach Stuhldreher for the fall training period are from the Keystone State.

Most of the candidates from Pennsylvania have started at their respective prep schools and are at the present in a commanding position at the Wildcats' lair. It is no far-fetched idea that every position on the Blue and White team may be filled by local boys.

It has been for the most part lads from the Bay State that have carried the burden of the Main Line's football campaigns. At the present time Pennsylvania's upstate prep and high schools have been sending their worthy athletes to bolster the ranks of Villanova's teams with the result that today they completely surpass any other State representation.

Massachusetts has a large representative body of athletes competing to uphold the ancient prestige of their State. Some 30 per cent. of the candidates claim the New England State as their home. The rest of the team is scattered throughout New York, New Jersey, Illinois, Montana, Oklahoma, California and Ohio.

The backfield at Villanova will be in all probability an all-State aggregation and will be composed of three veterans and a young cub from the freshmen team.

Captain Cletus Gardner, hailing from Pittsburgh, will have the first call full-back post. Toward the close of last season Gardner was eclipsing the work of ex-Captain Eddie Melanson, who for the past three years was considered one of the greatest line-smashing backs ever to enter Villanova. His running mates will most likely include "Hike" Highfield, veteran right-half and the fastest man on the team.

Left-half will be occupied by "Ted" Casey, from Wilkes-Barre. According to Coach Stuhldreher, Casey should display a brand of ball carrying seldom witnessed in a sophomore candidate. In the spring scrimmages against Penn this past season Casey carried the pigskin on many occasions that bespoke of future promise.

The "field general's" post will have two boys to choose from. Tommy Morgan, product of Wilkes-Barre, should enjoy the greatest season of his career. His speed and deceptiveness has spelt doom for many local elevens and has won him wide-known recognition. There is a likelihood of Morgan being transferred to left-half should Casey lack the necessary coolness and speed so indicative of Morgan. Jimmie McLaughlin, another veteran quarterback from Philadelphia, would then move up to the signal barker's position.

The move would not destroy the all-State backfield, but would rather make it one of the strongest units of the Blue and White team. Stuhldreher would have a set of ball carriers that have been under fire all last season and composed completely of all veteran representation.

The Villanova line will witness a bitter fight for State representation. The New England section has donated some fine guard and tackle material.

The pivot post will find two boys struggling for the first-call assignment. Martin Geizer, Charleroi, Pa., and the giant veteran Fred Donovan, from Danvers, Mass. The Pennsylvania adherents say that Geizer will take the post and the Massachusetts clan speak contra. Coach Stuhldreher predicts an impregnable centre post for Villanova no matter who gains the calling.

Eddie Kobilis, right guard and star pitcher of the Wildcats' ball team; Art Harkins, former Radnor High flash and veteran right tackle, and Victor Delabrida, right end, are determined that the right side of the Wildcats' forward wall will have all-Pennsylvania timber for its members.

"In a sense," remarked Eddie Hunsinger, line coach at Villanova, "it is a situation we have desired for a long period. It will mean that every man will have to keep plugging, up on his toes and wide awake at all times. The locality from which the boys hail from has absolutely nothing to do with our picking him for a post. He must show us that he has the 'goods' before we will give him the preference. It is a fact that the Pennsylvania lads are in the majority this fall and the greater part of our line may be composed of Keystone grid-material."

"Villanova's 1930 gridiron machine should prove to be the best I have ever coached," declared Coach Stuhldreher when interviewed concerning the team. "The play of the teams during the spring indicates, I think, that they have struck the right chord in sizing up our schedule and test next fall. They have been brought along slow but sure for these terrific struggles we plan to play in the Municipal Stadium."

Angling Intriguing To Ardmore Man

G. Earle Thompson Makes
Collection of Verse
'Stream Lines.'

The author of the following verses, G. Earle Thompson, of 44 St. Paul's Road, Ardmore, which are selected from a collection of writings he has compiled recently under the inviting title of "Stream Lines," has found the formulation of short stories and poetry a fascinating pastime. Although comparatively a novice at the game he has had several items printed in papers and magazines. A collection of these now awaits publication.

Several of the poems contain material of local interest. The beauty of the Perkiomen, the quietude and peace of the Valley Stream district, the humor and thrills and disappointments of the ardent angler—none of these has escaped this writer's observing pen.

His experiences are broad, covering enlistment in the Naval Reserve during war time, surveyor in the moonshine country of West Virginia, nature study teacher, hiker and scout leader. At the present time Mr. Thompson is of the banking force of the Merion Title and Trust Company. We welcome this opportunity to acquaint our readers with one of our local artists.

The Answer
Why is it that most men love so to fish?
Why is it that splendid sport so keen their wish?
Is it to fill their larders with a score
Or more of fish, much cheaper in the store?
Not as to that we never can subscribe,
Nor will their passion for the game subside;
Their aim and object's not material things,
But more the joy that touching nature brings.
As long as men pursue so fine a game,
All thoughts of self, or power, or wealth are shamed,
As long as men such noble play demand,
There still is chance their cramped souls may expand.
As long as self-expression must come out,
What better conquest than upon a trout?
The winning athlete with his eyes agleam

Feels no more pride than victors of the stream.

Change and Rest
Each year our family goes somewhere,
They say "Pa needs a rest,
He needs a change of food and air,
To restore lagging zest."

So off we go with groaning packs,
Our luggage is a sight,
We fairly strain our weary backs
With things we packed last night.

The kiddies never loved their toys
'So much before as now;
They will not part, my girls and boys,
From one darn thing—and how.

They make me take their bikes and stuff,
They haven't seen for weeks;
Just why the shore is not enough,
My aching back bespeaks.
Three trunks, eight dolls, a china set,
I thought I hid that too—
With all that junk along I'll bet
We'll have enough to do.

Vacations I would rearrange
At all the dads' request,
Now porters grab off all our change,
The hotels get the rest.

Refreshment
Vacation days are here once more,
The hottest of the year,
But who could mind their humid bore
With cool sea-waves so near?

An hour or two of Shore Fast Line,
A sandwich on the way,
A change and—splash—into the brine,
The heat has gone to stay.

As each wave hurls its cresting force,
I dive through to the trough,
Or ride each like a foamy horse
That tries to throw me off.

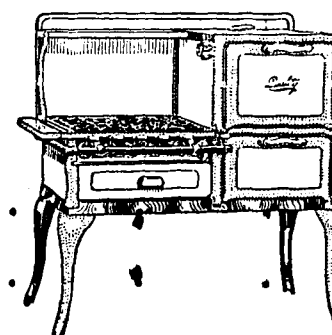

A dash across a shell-strewn beach,
For now the sun is low,
At last our bungalow I reach,
And she is there I know.

I wonder if the All-Wise Power
That made the sand and sea
Foresaw each pleasure-laden hour
That He then gave to me?
—G. Earle Thompson.

PLAYGROUND NEWS

Activities at the Borough
Playgrounds

The volley ball tournament of last Friday was won by the Community Playground represented by Ingebore Tyson, William Henshaw, Joe Baker, Fred Claffey and William Hansell. In the final game they defeated the school team composed of D. Hess, Mildred Watt, Sturgess Poorman, Edmond Anderson, Bob Tyson and James Barnett. There were ten teams playing, each having five players.

Results of the playground baseball league to date: Thursday, July 24, Midgets, 17; Narbrook, 2; Cardinals, 1; Lucky Nine, 8; Tuesday, July 29, Midgets, 8; Lucky Nine, 6; Cardinals, 16; Narbrook, 9. The Lucky Nine, captained by Charles Sexton, is garnering plenty of hits, but their fielding has been poor to date. Three Narbrook players have returned home and it is expected that they will bolster the team up for a better showing.

The League Standing:

	W.	L.
Midgets	5	0
Cardinals	4	1
Lucky Nine	1	4
Narbrook	0	4

The School Playground won the soap bubble contest on Tuesday. Julia Hess, Louise Barnett, Betty Burgess and Muriel Dougherty blew forty-seven bubbles over the scoring line in six minutes while Anne Donahue, Anna Brennen, Frances Melgrath and Anita McFarlin, of the Community Playground, blew twenty-nine bubbles over in the same length of time.

The new "Sprinkler" is working in great shape and will accommodate at least 100 children. It is great relief to the children on the hot days to have this shower daily at 4 P. M. and they are taking full advantage of it.

The attendance up to Tuesday, July 29, was 3922, or an average of 218 children for both playgrounds over a period of eighteen days.

On last Friday the main boxing bout was won by "Nickel Ricket," who captured the decision over John Cantagalli. "Skingee" and Henry Cantagalli boxed to a draw in the midget class. Both bouts were fast and well appreciated by the spectators. Many times "Skingee" brought a laugh from the side lines by his heavy swings and misses which landed him on the ground from their force.

Besides the new shower erected, a new backstop has been set up behind the small baseball field, new sand boxes replace the old dilapidated ones; a new bench is being made for handicraft purposes and there are many minor improvements.

The "Tom Thumb" golf course on the School Playground has assumed greater proportions, four new holes having been added. Adults are invited to make use of it in the evenings. All that is needed is a ball and masher.

On Wednesday a "marble golf" nine-hole course was erected on the Community grounds. This game has held the interest of the younger boys. The second week in August boys under fifteen will compete to see who will represent the Narberth playgrounds in Philadelphia on August 21 in the city marble golf championship.

Discuss Recreation Matters

At a meeting of the Narberth Recreation Board last Thursday night a very encouraging report on the work of the playgrounds was made by Allan B. Wetherall, director of physical education and playground supervisor. It was decided by the Board that the Narberth Baseball Club should be permitted to receive contributions at baseball games from grandstand occupants, also that children be admitted to the grandstand only when accompanied by adults.

Columbia Turners Win Return Game

Chase McKee from Box in 4th and Avenge Previous Defeat,
10-2.

PLAYED ON POOR FIELD

By John Uberti

In the second game of a scheduled two-game series with the Philadelphia Columbia Turners the Narberth Champion Club went down in defeat on the enemy's gravel diamond at Twenty-sixth and Master Streets in an abbreviated contest of six innings Tuesday. The Philadelphians avenged their defeat of the day before by doubling the count against the league leaders in their 10-to-2 triumph. The score for the previous game at Narberth was 5 to 1 in favor of the Boroughites.

As Manager Davis remarked after the game, his boys were beaten before they took to the field. The arena was of a spacious gravel area with all sorts of posts and pillars projecting from the ground. The idea of sliding into a base was unanimously discarded by the Narberth boys, for grass stains, they said, are much easier on the body than the piercing hot gravel of that field. The only resemblance this field has to the Narberth Ball Park was that it too was adorned with beautiful trees, but theirs were all planted in around the infield. To make the matter still more detrimental for our boys, the crowd was permitted to form a circle around the outfield, a few feet directly behind the outfielders. If a hit eluded the player there, he had to brush aside the crowd, take care of himself in the stampede and then take three guesses as to where the ball might be. The foemen were cunning in their demand of a return engagement on that field for they were aware that if they lost on our grounds the defeat would surely be atoned for on that field.

But due credit must be given to the Columbia Turners for their smart handling of hard drives on that lot. The manner in which they scooped up Narberth's terrific drives without a flaw throughout the curtailed fray was done in remarkable style and, in contrast to Narberth's shabby fielding, they resembled a pack of pachyderms. Great leniency was necessary in scoring the deeds of our boys, giving them all the advantage of the doubt in their fielding of the enemy's cluster of eleven base hits, because of their unfamiliarity on such a field.

This contest marked the twentieth independent ball game since the start of the season, of which the Narberth club has lost five for an average of .750.

Co-operation

Co-operation means mutual help.

It always results in benefit.

It constitutes a power for good. It means power and accomplishment.

The welfare and growth of our community depend upon co-operation.

The merchants have established themselves and invested money here; they constitute a powerful factor for growth and betterment.

But they need your co-operation, expressed in patronage.

When you send or spend your money outside of your neighborhood, it cannot be spent by the merchants on improvements to help build the community.

When you spend your money here, you co-operate.

Everyone benefits.

"It Pays to Advertise,"

But . . .

(Baltimore Ad Club Bulletin)

A lion met a tiger.

As they drew beside a pool,
Said the tiger, "Tell me why
You're roaring like a fool."

"That's not foolish," said the lion

With a twinkle in his eyes,
"They call me king of all the beasts

Because I advertise!"

A rabbit heard them talking
And ran home like a streak;
He thought he'd try the lion's plan,

But his roar was a squeak.

A fox came to investigate—
Had luncheon in the woods;

So when you advertise, my friend,

Be sure you've got the goods.

Are Volunteer Fire Companies Efficient?

cient training at the Philadelphia Fire School.

The volunteer system is maintained by dues from members, public subscriptions and an annual appropriation from the Board of Commissioners. The Board demands that a fire company have at least $10,000 worth of equipment adequately housed and two paid firemen to look after it in order to receive an annual allowance of $6000.

This money is used to keep equipment in repair and to add to the sinking fund for the purchase of new equipment.

To compare the volunteer firemen of today with the red-shirted battlers of fifty years ago is foolish. The volunteers are efficient, take good care of their equipment, spend their appropriation and donations wisely and fight fires, not each other. But in spite of all this efficiency, all this ardour, this pelting down the street pulling on a gum coat and sounding a siren furiously, getting dirty, tearing clothes, rescuing babies and overstuffed dayenports; doing, in fact, a hard, dirty, dangerous job that the man whose house is afire would hesitate to do—there is another side to the story.

We shall attempt to present that other side in a second article next week.

Colored Giants Bow To Narberth Blows

only promising bid to jilt Graham of a shut-out victory came in the third when Carrington reached base on a bungle and made his way around to third by virtue of an additional blunder.

Joel Rubincam remained in the spotlight for the third consecutive day of playing when he sprinkled three singles about the field in as many trips to the plate for the maximum returns. Ray Young equalled the work of Rubincam with a triple and two singles in three official appearances, his hits being well divided with a pass. Heckle, Gilfillan and Kearney were the other wreckers of great hopes in procuring a figure of .500 apiece.

All the players of the Borough club entered the hitting column in this turbulent affair and for the fifth time in a season failed to surpass their hitting record of sixteen hits set early in the year.

The Narberth fans were given a rare treat in the introduction of Turner, the one-armed marvel of the colored aggregation, who accepted each of the four putouts in centre field in unerring fashion, each time raising a wave of applause from the large attendance.

The dusky nine were at the champions' mercy throughout the fray and could not keep up with the hot pace set by the Main Line pachyderms. Master's blow in the first inning was responsible for the runs scored by Heckle and Kearney. The ponderous assault of the second stanza was the most audacious of the game as the Narberth club knocked off four damaging blows to score four runs. Rubincam and Young singled successively and cantered homeward on Graham's one bagger. Heckle went to first when hit by a wild heave and Kearney's sacrifice fly brought home Graham. A single off Humphries' mace gave Heckle access to the scoring station but Fleck and Masters failed to prolong the session. Ray Young's vivid triple in the fifth accounted for two runs when singles by Gilfillan and Rubincam ahead of him meant another pair of points for Narberth. Curwin waved Graham's bat and shipped in the local maskmen for the third run of the inning.

Fleck drummed out a long single in the final inning of play which augmented his hitting streak to twenty-two for the season and which clout also resulted in the final scoring for the Boroughites when the elderly gentleman of Narberth crossed off Gilfillan's three-bagger following which he was nipped at the disc trying to stretch it into a home run.

to more than $1,500,000 to gas and electric customers.

In discussing the new rates, William H. Taylor, President of Philadelphia

Electric Company, said:

"It has been the practice of this company to share with its customers the benefits of increased economies of operation in all departments, for both the public and the company benefit by reduced rates, the public through increased use of the numerous labor-saving devices in the homes, and the company by greater use of its facilities. The greatly expanded use of electric service by the public and the exercise of the most rigid economies and maximum efficiency of system operation have done much to make these reductions possible."

Build or Remodel NOW and Save Money!

It is a fact that, right now, building material prices are lower than at any other time since the war.

Add to this the abundance of skilled labor in every branch of the building industry now available, and you can scarcely expect to find a more opportune time to build or remodel economically.

Your Building Dollar Goes a Long Way Today

Prices are down, but how long they will stay down is hard to guess. It is very doubtful if material and labor costs can go lower, but both can go higher—and probably will before long.

Paying rent year after year gets you nowhere.

If you will just stop and do a bit of figuring you will find that you pay for a home in ten or twelve years whether you own it or not. We have aided many renters to attain home independence and can help you. Consult our Financial Department for advice and information.

If you need a new home, Build NOW!

If your present home needs modernizing to bring it up to date, and you plan to modernize rather than build, Remodel NOW!

We Believe There Will Be No More Advantageous Time!
